BRUCE ANDREWS TO JOIN ROCK CREEK GLOBAL ADVISORS LLC

WASHINGTON, DC – Bruce Andrews, former Deputy Secretary of Commerce, will join international economic policy advisory firm Rock Creek Global Advisors LLC (RCGA) as a Managing Director.

With personnel in the United States and Europe, RCGA advises many of the world’s leading companies. Founding firm member Daniel Price highlighted Andrews’ leadership role at Commerce on such key issues as technology and digital economy, cybersecurity, privacy, and trade and investment.

“We are delighted to welcome Bruce to RCGA,” said Price, former principal international economic policy advisor to President George W. Bush. “Bruce has served at the highest levels of government and the private sector, and brings deep knowledge about the range of challenges facing global companies today,” added Price.

“Bruce is a fantastic addition to Rock Creek Global Advisors,” said former Secretary of Commerce Penny Pritzker. “He is one of Washington’s premiere strategists with a keen understanding of global economics and trade, and how Washington works. He was a critical player in the Obama Administration’s digital economy, data, trade and investment and competitiveness policy initiatives during his tenure at the Department of Commerce and an absolutely integral member of our team.”

Andrews joins RCGA team members Clay Lowery, former Assistant Secretary for International Affairs at the US Treasury Department; Michael Smart, former international trade counsel on the US Senate Finance Committee; and Ambassador Jean-David Levitte (based in Paris), former Diplomatic Advisor to President Nicolas Sarkozy.

“I am thrilled to be joining the exceptional team at RCGA,” said Andrews. “I look forward to working closely with them and assisting our clients in navigating what is perhaps the most challenging policy environment in decades.”

In addition to his time at the Commerce Department, Andrews’ varied career has spanned government, public policy, business and law. He has served as General Counsel of the US Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation; Vice President of Government Affairs at the Ford Motor Company; and founding Partner at Quinn Gillespie & Associates.

Andrews holds a JD from the Georgetown University Law Center and a BA in Political Science from Haverford College.
